The Liberty Partnerships Program (LPP) was started in 1988 by the State of New York Department of Education to reduce the high school drop out rate in New York State. In 1989, a number of local community-based agencies and institutions of higher education formed the first Liberty Partnerships Program in Rochester. We are one of 44 partnerships serving approximately 17,600 students across New York State. Over 90% of Liberty Partnerships Program students complete high school.

Our offices are located in the heart of Rochester at Monroe Community College's Downtown Campus.
