

Rodney Eugene Clark is a career military officer with over 20 years of experience leading in the Military Police field. Rodney grew up near Houston, Texas and began his military career in 1995. After four years of enlisted service he received his undergraduate degree from Texas State University and was commissioned an officer in the US Air Force. After serving over ten years in law enforcement and police administrator positions with the Air Force, he transitioned to the US Army and went on to serve as a Military Police commander and Director of Emergency Services (Police and Fire) in the US Army. Rodney's current position is the Assistant Professor of Military Science in the Army ROTC department at the Rochester Institute of Technology. It is here he teaches college students to become officers in the US Army. Some of Rodney's other military assignments include duty as an operations officer of a nuclear missile unit and antiterrorism officer while serving in the Middle East. Rodney has been assigned to and lived in Montana, Idaho, Missouri, Oklahoma and New York for United States duty and has served overseas duty in South Korea (3 years) and the United Arab Emirates (1 year).

Rodney received his Master's Degree in Criminal Justice in 2009 and is a graduate of the US Air Force Police Administrators Course and the US Army Law Enforcement Senior Leader's Course. In addition to his military career, Rodney has four years' experience in the juvenile corrections field. He has also worked as an adjunct professor teaching undergraduate Criminal Justice for Cameron University in Lawton, Oklahoma and for Central Texas College based out of Killen, Texas.