

The Divided States of America

Political Divisiveness in American Politics

Americans are truly divided. We struggle to talk about our most pressing issues, dare to disagree without an argument or we break all communication with family and friends. Lack of trust in government is at record levels and people are not willing to take the time to communicate and listen to each other.

Join us for a discussion on how and why we are so divisive and what can bring us together. For the future of the country and the nation it's time to find common ground.

Presenters: Professor Louis Andolino and Professor Joseph Scanlon

Wednesday, February 26, 2020

12:00 p.m. – 1:00 p.m.***

Forum, 3-130

*Continued discussion from 1:00 p.m. - 2:00 p.m.

in the PRISM Multicultural Center, 1-108

Sponsored by PRISM Multicultural Center, (FYE) First Year Experience, (GEIS) Global Education & International Services, (IDEA) Inclusion, Diversity, Equity & Accountability Office, MCC Library, Anthropology/History/Political Science & Sociology Department, and the Office of Student Life & Leadership Development

Monroe Community College
STATE UNIVERSITY OF NEW YORK