Screening and Discussion of the film
Election Day 2016.

Tuesday, October 30, 2018
1:00 - 2:00 p.m. in room 8-300

After a long and contentious presidential campaign, more than 10,000 people spontaneously visited Susan B. Anthony's grave in Rochester, New York to pay tribute to America's most famous suffragist and place their "I Voted Today" stickers upon her headstone as an expression of their pride and gratitude. Although the grave was still a gathering place the next day, the atmosphere was far different. Following the screening, director and producer Linda Moroney will discuss the making of the film, and answer questions from the audience.

Public parking for lecture in Lot V (visitors) or at Meters (.50 cents/hour 2 hour maximum)
