

EMILY MARTINEZ-VOGT

EDUCATION

Doctorate of Philosophy, University of Rochester, May 2014.

Dissertation Title: Navigating the Transition to Community College: Understanding the Perceptions and Strategies Related to Latina Experiences.

Master of Science, St. John Fisher College, Organizational Learning and Human Resource Development, May 2007

Thesis Title: The Effectiveness of a Training and Development Program: The Ins and Outs of What Makes Effective Training Happen

Bachelor of Arts, St. John Fisher College, English Literature with Sociology Minor, May 2003

Associate in Science, Liberal Arts General Studies, Monroe Community College, December 2001

Dr. Martinez-Vogt is the current Program Chair/Academic Unit Head of the Doctor of Business Administration Program at Florida Institute of Technology, where she has also served as a faculty member in the Nathan M. Bisk College of Business. Prior to her current position, Dr. Martinez-Vogt served as the Program Implementation Manager of Geriatric Management at BlueCross BlueShield. Previous higher education experience includes serving as the EMBA Program Services Coordinator and Wellness Center Coordinator at St. John Fisher College. Dr. Martinez-Vogt has developed the curriculum for several Doctorate, Graduate and Undergraduate courses at FIT and the University of Rochester. She has published multiple articles in Peer-reviewed Journals and presented on her research at several national conferences.