

THE SOCIOLOGY FILM SERIES PRESENTS

Written and directed by Chris Paine (2006)

Thursday
April 24, 2008

6pm

5-100

Chris Paine's film investigates the events leading to the quiet destruction of thousands of new, radically efficient electric vehicles. Through interviews and narrative, the film paints a picture of an industrial culture whose aversion to change and reliance on oil may be deeper than its ability to embrace ready solutions.

The film is free and open to the MCC community and the public. Light refreshments will be served. Sponsored by the Anthropology/History/Political Science/Sociology Department. For information contact: Bethany Gizzi (bgizzi@monroecc.edu or 292-3284).
