

Bystander Intervention Training

The Bystander Approach

The name “MVP” refers both to an educational philosophy and to a highly developed training program, in which participants are introduced to key concepts and strategies for implementing the model’s core teaching in their schools, workplaces and extended peer cultures.

MVP trainings are widely renowned for their participatory spirit, creativity, and innovative exercises. MVP was also the first program to focus on bystanders as one component of its overall mission to provide quality gender violence prevention education and leadership development.

MVP bystander training has three main goals:

- 1) To help students and others develop a range of options for intervention in specific situations and scenarios;
- 2) To foster a peer culture ethos that motivates everyone to get involved in challenging and interrupting all forms of abuse, and helping to create a climate in which abusive attitudes, beliefs and behaviors are seen as unacceptable, uncool and unwelcome;
- 3) To help people of all ages and backgrounds develop the skills to become leaders and mentors to others on the issues of sexual assault and relationship abuse prevention.
